15. Restricted Players

There are a number of ways a player can be classed as restricted; to avoid confusion we have separated these into two categories;

- Oceania Born Players outside of Australia – this is a player who was born outside of the Oceania region.
- Australia citizens – this is when a player who played in the previous/current season of the NBL, WNBL (or equivalent overseas league), is classed as restricted by the number of minutes average.

All players moving from one country to another for a valid reason have the right to participate in basketball competitions subject to the rules of FIBA and Basketball Australia.

In Australia the NBL and the WNBL is classed as the first division competition, the NBL1 is classed as the second division competition.

- a) Each team in the NBL1 are entitled to have a maximum of three (3) restricted players with no more than two (2) players from category A permitted.

- 15.1. Category A - Oceania Born Players outside of Australia player
Players who have citizenship from any of the FIBA Oceania members (as per in the FIBA Regulations) are allowed to play in all Leagues in Australia without being considered “foreign” or “restricted” in terms of competition eligibility.

Please refer to FIBA Oceania’s regulations for International Licences for Foreign Players, fees do apply and foreign players will not be permitted to play without a Foreign Players Licence.

- a) Players who do not hold Australian citizenship status but immigrated to Australia with their parents prior to their fifteenth (15th) birthday may apply for a Special Foreign Player License to enable them to participate in the Championship division as an unrestricted player.

- a) If a player has dual nationality and has represented another Country in any official FIBA tournament (Zone Qualifier, World Championships or Olympic Games) and is therefore ineligible to represent Australia will be ruled as "restricted".
- b) Players who played in previous/current season of the NBL, WNBL (or equivalent overseas league), will be classed as a restricted player, if".
 - A NBL player averaged greater than 25% of available court time (10 minutes).
 - A WNBL player averaged greater than 35% of available court time (14 minutes).

If a player last played in the NBL/WNBL or equivalent overseas league 2 seasons prior to the current season, and has not played in any other competition in Australia or overseas, then the status given in that season shall apply.

For example "If the current season of the WNBL is 2014/15 and Jane Doe last played in the WNBL in the 2012/13 season and averaged more than 14 minutes a game, Jane will then be classed as a Restricted Player".

- c) For Youth League, if a player is deemed restricted as per by-law 14.2 b and if their association also has a team competing in NBL1 during the same season. Then this player is not eligible to play Youth League and can only play in the NBL1.
